

SON CAUSES ARREST OF FATHER CHARGING HE STOLE HIS WIFE

ALBERT ROCKWELL HELD TO CIRCUIT COURT BY JUDGE

Claimed that Aged Nelson, Wis., Man Disappeared with Wife of Son Deserting His Own

TRAGED TO SPIRIT LAKE, IDAHO

Erring Young Wife Alleged to Have Sent Communication to Relative that Led to Arrest

TOOK WITH HIM ALL HIS CASH

Drew $8,000 from Bank and Started Livery Stable in Western City; Young Woman Not Molested

That Albert Rockwell, for many years a resident of Nelson and Nodena, Wisconsin, eloped with the young wife of his son, Bert Rockwell, deserting his own wife, is the charge of the son who caused the arrest of his father.

Rockwell, Sr., was Monday brought back from Spirit Lake, Idaho, by Sheriff John Vollmer of Alma and yesterday was arraigned in county court at Alma on a statutory charge. He pleaded not guilty and was bound over to the circuit court for trial. Bail was fixed at $1,000 and late last night had not been furnished.

His aged wife and son testified against Rockwell.

The eloping father was traced to Spirit Lake by a postcard which his son's wife sent to residents in Wisconsin.

According to the story of the son he planned a year ago to move to Nelson, Wis., from a Minnesota town. He went in advance of the family to prepare the home.

His father had been a frequent visitor at the son's home and it was planned that he should stay behind and help arrange the moving. When everything at Nelson was in readiness to receive Mrs. Rockwell, Jr., and her small daughter, she was wired to "come."

In vain did young Rockwell wait. They did not appear, neither did he receive word. Investigation showed that they had completely disappeared. Not only they, but Rockwell's father.

Mrs. Rockwell, Sr., was unable to tell of the whereabouts of her husband and her son's wife and daughter. The father, it is alleged, took with him $8,000 he had in the bank, leaving his wife practically destitute.

No trace of the pair was found until recently, when relatives of the young Mrs. Rockwell received a postcard from Spirit Lake, Idaho. This was turned over to the Buffalo county authorities and correspondence with the authorities at Spirit Lake showed Rockwell and the son's wife to be living there. The former was running a livery stable and the woman a restaurant.

Warrants were immediately placed in the hands of Sheriff Vollmer, extradition papers secured and Rockwell arrested.

Mrs. Rockwell, Jr., was not brought back, chiefly because her husband is of the opinion that he is better off without her. Punishment of his father for breaking up the family is the motive that prompted the arrest of the father.

MAIN STREET SEES CHANGE DURING '13

Old Year Witnessed Number of Improvements and Enlargements on the "White Way"

CHIEF IS STATE BANK'S REMOVAL

Institution Now Occupies One of the Most Commodious Establishments in the City

When little 1914, always depicted by the cartoonists as a naked little lad with a sash upon which is lettered (or numbered) his name, wandered down Main street in La Crosse promptly upon the stroke of 12 last night, it is doubtful if he noticed any changes—not having been here before. But had he been able to overlook his predecessor, old Mr. 1913, before the latter left, he might have procured much valuable information about what has happened on the "main stem" of the city during the old man's reign.

Main street, La Crosse, to the average citizen, probably looks very much as it has for several years back. Changes come a little at a time and are not noticed. But in the aggregate La Crosse's main business street has seen a deal of shifting and improvement during the last year.

The State Bank
Chief among the changes which will be noticed is the move of the State bank's quarters. Formerly it occupied small and outgrown rooms on the first floor of what is still called the State bank building, at 319 Main street. Today it is in one of the most splendidly fitted up banking establishments in the city, in the McMillan building. The new rooms are said to rank high among similar establishments in cities in this size anywhere in the north-west.

The State bank's old quarters are occupied by a new venture, the La Crosse Trust company, which was organized more than six months ago, and was successful from the start.

Owen's New Building
But one new building was erected on Main street during the year—the new home of the O. J. Owen company. The building is a radical departure from the unornamental business block which characterized most American cities. It is a three story edifice of brick, and effectually expresses the artistic spirit which reigns within its walls.

A third extensive piece of remodeling has been completed less than a month. That is the extension of the Banner Dairy Lunch room. The Banner's next door neighbor was the Servis clothing and furnishing store. Mr. Servis moved into the building in the next block on Main street, recently vacated by the Frye Shoe company. The Banner knocked out the wall between the two establishments, converting the whole into one large room. It has been beautifully finished in white tile and enamel, and furnished with glistening white tables.

Mr. Servis moved his tailoring establishment into a remodeled and modernized store, whose windows are among the most attractive on the street.

The Walkover Shop
Next to Mr. Servis is another modern and up to date store which is a product of the new year—the Anderson & Rice Walkover Shoe shop. This store is in the Barron building, in the space formerly occupied by the carpet and drapery department of the E. R. Barron store. It has been remodeled and refurnished, and has been converted into one of the most modern of the city's establishments.

The drapery department of Barron's has moved to the third floor of the building, which has also been remodeled to suit the needs of its manager, Mr. Fred Ehrman.

Scott-Rose Enlarges
The Scott-Rose company joined the ranks of the improvers and enlargers early in the year, when they began operations to extend their store to the second floor of the building they occupy on Main street between Fourth and Fifth. They already occupied the third floor of the building, but the space between belonged to the offices of Drs. Evans and Bannan.

The doctors moved their offices into the McMillan building, and the Scott-Rose company immediately set to work, throwing the whole of the second floor of the building into one room, which is now in use. An elevator was put in to save steps and stair-climbing for shoppers.

The store room in the McMillan building saw another change, when the Komiss-Robertson company moved out, and the Burrows company of Chicago engaged the space, after remodeling it into a modern establishment. Expensive new fixtures were installed. One of the features of the new establishment is its large display space in the windows. The windows beside their size have the additional appeal of tasteful decoration.

Cafe Now Confectionery
The Schrank cafe also underwent a metamorphosis, emerging from its remodeling as the Elite confectionery store, which was opened by Gus Pappas early this month. Mr. Pappas

ANALYSIS OF NEW CURRENCY BILL A BIG COMPLIMENT

E. M. Wing Says It Will Establish Faith and Confidence in Our Financial System

WILL DO AWAY WITH ALL PANICS

Proves Conclusively How Difficulty of 1907 Cannot Recur Under Administration Measure

RECEIVE CHARTER NUMBER ONE

La Crosse Banker First in the Nation to Apply to Come Under Provisions of Money Law

E. M. Wing, vice president of the Batavian National bank, the first banker in the United States to make application to come under the new currency law and to whom the First National bank charter was granted by Secretary McAdoo, has prepared an analysis of the new law in which he declares it will produce a feeling of confidence and safety in our financial system.

His review of the new law follows: (BY E. M. WING)
The federal reserve act as finally passed should be very satisfactory to the public and acceptable to the banks. The reasonable objections of the bankers to the house bill have been met by the administration. The segregation of savings deposits section has been entirely stricken out; the real estate loan section is made of practical benefit to both farmers and banks in the rural communities; and the reserve requirements for time deposits have been reduced. The senate amendments providing for a guarantee or insurance fund and authorizing the use of the federal reserve notes and national bank notes as legal reserve are left out of the bill as passed.

The details of administration are better worked out in the transition from the present system of reserve banks to the regional banks is to be made gradually over a period of three years.

To End "Pyramiding"

The final effect of the bill will be to end the "pyramiding" of bank reserves and the accumulation of surplus reserves in New York city. After the transition period, the new system will result in a considerable increase of loanable funds because of the decrease in reserve requirements, modified by the reverse of the "pyramiding" process.

The weakness of our present banking system has been in its independent ownership and management, which has compelled each bank to rely largely on its own resources in times of trouble. The result has been, that each bank at such times, will try to build up its own reserve at the expense of its neighbors, and so make matters worse.

Tells of 1907 Panic

In 1907 with the largest per capita circulation up to that time; with the banks in splendid condition, with vaults full of currency held as reserve, and with ample assets to secure the issue of more currency if there was any authority for its issue; with a large crop in the process of marketing business was paralyzed because of the lack of available currency, and because our absurd laws that prevented the use of the reserves when needed.

There was no reason for that panic and the resulting loss and distress other than our banking system.

With the new currency system in operation, this situation could never occur. When the local demand for crop moving purposes is the greatest, or there should be an unusual demand on a bank for any reason, the bank, if a member of the federal reserve system, could take from its loans notes based on "agricultural commercial or industrial" transactions—that would mean notes of farmers, grain and stock men, merchants and manufacturers—maturing within ninety days, and by depositing these notes as security with its regional bank, could borrow such

North Side Youths Arrested for Taking Money from Resort Keeper After Flashing a Star

ENDS LONG SEARCH BY POLICE

Officer Dan Deneen Nabs Louis Wittenberg and Otto Dasse Late Yesterday Afternoon

Louis Wittenberg, aged 23, and Otto Dasse, aged 22, were arrested yesterday by Detective Daniel Deneen. The boys are alleged to have represented themselves to be policemen and under threats of arrest extracted five dollars from Hazel Winters, former resort keeper.

The men, according to the Winters woman, wanted twenty-five dollars and failed to get it only because "five" was all she had in the house.

According to the police, the two appeared at the home of the Winters woman on Second and Pine streets on December 18 and represented themselves to be detectives investigating "resorts" in La Crosse. They displayed a document bearing the names "J. B. Weber."

Informing that the resort days were over here, they maintained they had been watching the Winters' house and had evidence enough to close it. They threatened the arrest of Miss Winters upon her denial of law infraction.

"If we arrest you it means going into court and discreditable notoriety," the Winters woman alleges Wittenberg told her, "so if you can slip us twenty-five dollars we may be able to keep this quiet and report your place as being alright."

She gave him five dollars and they were to return two days later for the remainder.

In the meantime Miss Winters consulted Frankie LaSalle who branded the story a "fake" and was present when Wittenberg returned for the second installment.

He was taken into a private room given a beating and thrown into the street. Later the police were informed of the affair and the arrests followed.

Dasse, it is claimed, did not appear the second time.

OSBORNE FUNERAL TO BE HELD HERE

The funeral of Mrs. Rockwell Osborne, who died yesterday morning in Minneapolis, will be held Saturday morning from the home of Mr. B. E. Edwards, 1224 Cass street, at 10:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Louise Ober Osborne was the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Levi E. Ober. She was born in Plainville, Ohio, March 6, 1845, and came to La Crosse with her parents in 1857. She graduated from Mt. Holyoke college in 1867 and in 1870 married Rockwell E. Osborne. During October, 1912, she removed to Minneapolis where she resided until her death.

INCREASE OF A HALF MILLION IN REALTY BUSINESS LAST YEAR WILL GROW IN 1914

PROSPERITY TO FILL NEW YEAR

Local Real Estate Men Predict Great Things for La Crosse in Building

PROPERTY VALUES SHOW INCREASE

All Unite in Asserting that 1913 was Record Breaker and that 1914 Bids Fair to Eclipse It

The new year starting today will be replete with prosperity for La Crosse, in the opinion of the city's prominent real estate men, and their advice to La Crosse property owners is not to sacrifice their holdings, that property values in La Crosse are bound to go up during the coming year and that the raise in value will be but the start of a steady increase that will continue for some time.

All say there has been a marked activity in real estate during the year just ended, that building increased wonderfully over former years and that 1914 will see greater activity than 1913.

The statements on conditions were prepared by Mr. S. W. Anderson, Mr. Frank Roth, Mr. J. F. Saltz and Mr. Joseph Dubraks. The latter two are well versed on conditions on the north side.

Hold For Money

"Keep your property, prices are going up," is the advice of Mr. Roth whose review and prediction follows: "The year 1913 has been an interesting one in local real estate circles. While the number of transfers were not so much greater than last year, the money involved was considerable more. The tendency has been to central business property, for the reason that such property is about the only form of income property which actually enhances in value, in the hands of a tenant, as the great advances in rent, in the last five years demonstrates. Hence, the increasing demand for central business property."

"The high cost of labor and building material has not checked the building of modern residences, as a drive or walk in the residence section will easily prove, showing the faith the investor has in the future growth and prosperity of our city. There are but few houses for rent, showing a healthy state of affairs. There are many valid reasons for the high, compulsory tax rate this year and investors should not be discouraged as the greatest essential thing for the health of any city, must necessarily be an abundant supply of pure and wholesome water, which we are about to enjoy. With the park system well started and partially established, the outlook of our many paved streets and avenues under way, our grand shade trees and beautiful shrubbery on every hand, our unexcelled educational facilities, we have something that any municipality may feel proud of, and will undoubtedly attract the attention of many people from the congested cities, to our clean and well governed city. During the past year a number of homes have been sold to outsiders on account of our exceptional good schools and colleges."

Currency Bill Helps

"With the currency question settled, making money more available for various enterprises, the tariff satisfactorily adjusted, we look to eastern manufacturers, where labor troubles are frequent, to locate here, as there are plenty of laboring men, and where shipping facilities are exceptionally good, and choice sites available and comparatively cheap. Inquiries are coming to our commercial organizations from manufacturers employing from 100 to 500 men with a view of changing their location. We have had no great real estate boom since the C. B. & Q. R. R. came in, but values have been increasing constantly, slowly, but surely. We are due to have a boom in the near future, such as other cities in the state have had, and some fine morning the Old Town will wake up with a real live boom on, sending real estate values up 25 to 50 per cent. We look forward to a large volume of business in 1914, and our advice to property owners is not to sacrifice their holdings, as values are bound to increase soon. Unless all signs fail we will count 50,000 noses in 1920. It is up to our own citizens to make or break the town, and if everybody, especially property owners will boost and refrain from knocking we will soon be back to second place in the state. Now

1914 Should be Big

In summing up the situation in La Crosse county Mr. Thompson today said: "The year 1913 shows a marked improvement over 1912, both as it regards the activity of the real estate market and the prices. This is especially true of the north side, where property is being sold fast and prices advancing steadily."

The Reports

The report of Mr. Thompson for 1912 and 1913 follows:
1912
City deeds 646, $698,666.
County deeds 411, $969,024.

THOMPSON SHOWS CONDITIONS GOOD

Second Annual Statement of Register of Deeds Records $15,000,000 in Real Estate Transfers

BIG IMPROVEMENT OVER 1912

People in Both City and County Borrowed Many Thousands Less Than During Previous Year

The second annual report of Register of Deeds Andrew E. Thompson shows that over $15,000,000 in real estate business passed through his office during the year just ended.

Deducting a $10,000,000 trust deed filed by the Wisconsin Railway, Light & Power company the report shows that the increase in the 1913 business over 1912 is approximately one-half million dollars, there having been filed a $3,000,000 trust deed in 1912.

A marked period of prosperity is shown in both the city and country during 1913, this being particularly true in regard to mortgages.

In 1912 there were city mortgages to the amount of $491,081. In 1913 they amounted to but $429,945, showing that residents of the city of La Crosse borrowed $61,136 less in 1913 than in 1912.

Country Prosperous

The prosperity is the same in the country, outside the city, for in 1912 there were mortgages to the extent of $681,506, while in 1913 they totaled but $609,112, a decrease of $72,394.

The entire county borrowed $133,530 less during the year just ended than in 1912.

That the figures do not show the exact amount of business transacted in the county during the year is proven by the fact that in 1913 there were 330 deeds in which no consideration, other than "one dollar, love and affection," was stated. Many of these "love and affection" deeds really involve hundreds of acres of valuable farm lands and many valuable pieces of city property, the prices of which the purchaser wished kept secret.

1914 Should be Big

In summing up the situation in La Crosse county Mr. Thompson today said:

"The year 1913 shows a marked improvement over 1912, both as it regards the activity of the real estate market and the prices. This is especially true of the north side, where property is being sold fast and prices advancing steadily."

"The prospects for the new year are excellent and from now on it is almost a certainty that prices will show a steady advance instead of remaining stationary or declining."

THE NEW YEAR'S CHIMES

Let bells from bellies far and wide,
In every land, in every clime,
Ring out in brass-toned symphony
The New Year's chime!

Let echo join with echo far,
In one unbroken chain of sound,
Until prophetic melody
Vibrates the world around.

And let there be no vain regrets
Upon the Old Year's bier;
Forget the dead, and live instead
Within the bright New Year.

Ring out, glad bells! Perhaps your charm,
Vibrant in Heaven's dome,
May shake the Pearly Gates ajar,
And guide the Lost Souls home.

AND REMEMBER THE RIGHT IS FOR HUNTING

Tom Morris suggests a constitutional convention.
Immediately the Free Press
(and patter) lets out a yelp.
Instantly these standard papers:
Sentinel, Appleton Post, Eau Claire Leader, Wausau Record-Herald, Jefferson County Union, Racine Journal-News and Evening Wisconsin follow the Free Press in full cry.
They know that, as Kipling said:
The strength of the pack is the wolf,
The strength of the wolf is the pack.

PPY IN OUR PPY NEW YEAR

Last night La Crosse concluded its adventure in the municipal election of Christmas in a fitting with sacred and patriotic
The experience was valuable and the mere pleasure it gave us, created a fine spirit of fellowship and appreciation of our community oneness, and it tuned up our spirits for this greatest and most recognized of Christian holi-

Unfortunately, the enterprise was without its detractors, but instead of dissents disclosed none
one who had read the history of the municipal Christmas tree, poses it aims to serve and the
of its influence. These were all polished, many of repeated. Therefore the fault information is with the mis-
and as finally it is futile
with those who will not they may be passed with-
her commo.
The great majority of people in this city join with the majority of the municipal Christmas tried in being con-

the approval of the event. We shall learn by experience, and next year
the celebration will be even more successful. It is gratifying to dare say that so positive is the good impression it has created that its recurrence as an annual event is a foregone conclusion.

Many thanks to the good ladies who promoted it, to the mayor who fathered it, to all who so cheerfully
co-operated in the work and contributed to the expense, and to the scores of singers who joined in its choruses. It has helped to start us on our

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

BUSINESS IS GOOD

We propose a New Year's resolution for the business men. Hold up your right hands and repeat after us:

"Realizing that talk of 'hard times' is the greatest agency for the creation of 'hard times,' I am resolving that I will indulge in no such foolish talk; that if others talk pessimistically to me I will answer with a bright smile and insist that times
are excellent and the outlook gratifying. My slogan shall be—
"Business is GOOD!"

Every level-headed man of affairs deprecates the lugubrious attitude of certain people and publications.
Really, there is not the least occasion for it. The wool manufacturers had a bad case of the grumps after the passage of the tariff bill, only to find that in November imports of woolen articles fell below those of November, 1912, by $45,000,000.
The bankers admit that the finance bill will not destroy them, and its immediate tendency will be to facilitate credit. A bumper crop has contributed to the sound condition of the country.

The measures mentioned above
together represent the most revolutionary legislation passed in this country in thirty years, and naturally there accompanied the period of debate a business hesitancy that has slowed things up a bit. Locally the open winter has been bad for the movement in clothing, fuel and meats. This has been enhanced by unsatisfactory conditions in some foreign countries, notably Brazil. But latest reports from abroad are encouraging, and having passed through its travail of legislation, this country is already awakening. The result will be renewed life, for every slowing up that is based on mere caution is followed by extraordinary activity with the resumption of confidence.

We predict that 1914 will be recorded as one of the most prosperous
in American history, and the sooner
we cut out the "poor mouth" and talk sense, the sooner will the boom
begin. Now, altogether:

"Business is GOOD!"
WING ON THE NEW CURRENCY LAW

Today we publish a remarkably concise and understandable analysis of the new currency law, prepared at our request by E. M. Wing, vice president of the Batavian National Bank of La Crosse. As this bank was the first in the entire United States to come under the provisions of the new law, it may be presumed that Mr. Wing has followed the progress of the bill closely and therefore speaks with authority. The lay mind
may have been somewhat confused
by general discussions of the measure, and we believe Mr. Wing's article, written for the consumption of the average man and woman, is a remarkably valuable contribution.
One who reads it carefully will comprehend the new law.

The prize singlist is the man who advocates the singing of grand opera
in English on the theory that it would then be possible to understand the words.

King Menelik of Abyssinia has died again. If this sort of thing keeps up much longer it is likely to have an injurious effect upon his majesty's health.

A New York woman has been granted $10,000 a year alimony.
And still there are some people who maintain that marriage is a failure.

Ferdinand Pinney Ertle's intention to become a Russian citizen might be construed as a studied insult to the unspeakable Turk.

There doesn't seem to be any way to make 1914 happier than 1913 for the holdup men—that is, not unless

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES

Suffered Three Years. Used Resinol.
Now Not A Pimple To Be Seen.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 27, 1912. "I had been troubled for the past three years with pimples which completely covered my face and neck. The pimples would come out, fester up and cause me to pick at them, feeling very uncomfortable. I tried most all kinds of facial creams, but with no effect. I tried a sample of Resinol Soap and Ointment and noticed instant relief. I bought Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment, and began the treatment. After using two bars of Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap,
there was not a pimple to be seen, and now
my face is as smooth as if there was never a pimple on it." (Signed) Albert Greenburg, 4167 Frankford Ave.
For eighteen years Resinol has been a favorite doctor's prescription and household remedy for itching troubles, skin eruptions,
dandruff, red, rough faces and hands,
sores, piles, etc. Stops itching instantly.
Sold by all druggists, Resinol Soap, 25c, Ointment, 50c, and $1.00, but you can try them without cost—just write for liberal samples to Dept. 18-M, Resinol Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

RADIUM TREATMENT HELPS CONGRESSMAN

Congressman Bremner.

"Smiling Bob" Bremner, congressman from New Jersey, one of President Wilson's closest personal friends, is undergoing treatment for cancer at the private hospital of Dr. A. B. Kelly in Baltimore, and $120,000 worth of radium is being temporarily embedded in his shoulder to effect the cure. Dr. Kelly is well known as an advocate of the radium treatment for cancer, and is one of the men who contributed $150,000 to the government to be used in the search for new deposits of the rare metal.

Wanted the Postmaster

A man called at the postoffice the other day and asked for the postmaster. He was told by the clerk that the postmaster was not in.

"When will he be in?" was asked.
The postmaster would be in with-
in half an hour. "Is there anything
I can do for you?" the clerk asked.
"No; I want to see the postmaster."

After a while the man came back and asked again for the postmaster.
"He's not back yet," the clerk told him. "Is there anything I can do for you, or can I tell him something when he comes?"

"No, there ain't nuthin' you can do, and I wisht the postmaster was here. I want to see if there's any mail for me, and I'm gettin' in a hurry."

Fate of Lazy Boys

"Say, mother," asked Edgar,
"when I grow up I'll be a man, won't I?"
"Yes, my boy," answered the mother, "but if you must be a man
you must be very industrious at school, and learn how to behave yourself. You must not be lazy."
"Why, mother?" asked the little boy. "Do the lazy boys turn out to be women when they grow up?"

How to Make Better Cough Syrup than You Can Buy
A Family Supply, Saving $2
and Fully Guaranteed.

A full pint of cough syrup—as much as you could buy for $2.50—can easily be made at home. You will find nothing that takes hold of the ordinary cough
more quickly, usually conquering it inside of 24 hours. Excellent, too, for spasmodic cough, whooping cough, bronchial asthma and bronchitis.
Mix one pint of granulated sugar with 1/2 pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, then add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly.
Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.
This is just laxative enough to help relieve a cough. Also stimulates the appetite, which is usually upset by a cough. The taste is pleasant.

The effect of pine and sugar syrup on the inflamed membranes is well known.
Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in gualac and other natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this combination.
This Pinex and Sugar Syrup remedy
has often been imitated, but the old successful mixture has never been equalled.
It is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction,
or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

Take It as It Comes
It ain't no use
To heap abuse
Upon the weather man:
He's mortal, too,
Like me and you,
He does the best he can.
Some folks believe
He can achieve
All sorts from A to izzard;
That he can bring Any old thing—
A fine day or a blizzard.
But that ain't so.
Oh, mercy, no,
That notion is insane.
He cannot yank
A little crank
And make it snow or rain.
Like all the rest,
E'en at his best,
He's got to be content
With humid heat
Or snow or sleet
Or whatever else is sent.

Since the Flood
Here is one that was told the other day by a congressman from New York state, when the conversation turned to scenes and incidents in the courtroom.

Some time ago, the congressman said, a civil suit was tried in one of the New York courts in which a pretty young woman from Texas was one of the principal witnesses.
"And now, Miss Smith," remarked the examining lawyer, after the witness had been duly sworn, "you reside in the state of Texas, do you not?"

"Yes, sir," easily answered the fair
witness, "in Galveston."
"How long, Miss Smith," continued the lawyer in the same formal tone, "have you lived in Galveston?"
"Ever since the flood, sir," was the prompt response of Miss Smith.
"Ever since the flood?" gallantly remarked the judge, sitting up and beginning to take notice. "My dear young lady, you don't look your age
by 6,000 years."

The "Sidewalk Chief"

The professional fire fighter is too
frequently face to face with danger to regard fires in an esthetic light,
but the feelings of the amateur with a passion for "running with the machine" occasionally show an epicurean flavor.

While running to a fire in a large town in Massachusetts one citizen overtook another who was going in the same direction.

"Oh, dear!" the latter gasped,
quite out of breath. "I hope it's not the stove lining works. I've seen that twice already!"—Youth's Companion.

The Road to Honesty

Lemmy Williams, a little colored boy, was caught in several petty delinquencies and was at last sentenced to a short term in the reform
school, where he was taught a trade.

Shortly after his return home he met a prominent woman, who asked:
"Well, Lemmy, what did they put you at in prison?"

"Dev started in to make an hones'
boy out'n me, ma'am," was the reply.

"That's good," replied the woman,
approvingly. "I hope they succeeded, Lemmy."

"Dey did, deedy, ma'am."
"And how did they teach you to be honest?" queried the woman.

"Why, dey done put me in de shoe
shop, ma'am," explained the boy.
"nailin' pasteboards onto shoes for soles, ma'am."

Her Reformation

Mrs. Brown lately awoke to the solemn fact that her young daughter Margaret was gifted with an oversized imagination which threatened to run into exaggeration, and this might very easily overdevelop into decided prevarication. And so this enthusiastic disciple of the new psychology called Margaret to the stand for a hearing.

"Margaret," said she, "do you remember what happened to those children in the Bible who told stories—
how the little bears came out of the woods and ate them all up?" she had gone a little astray in her Biblical history, but we will let that pass.

"Oh, yes, mamma," said Margaret,
with gooseflesh shivers. "I remember. Wasn't it dreadful? And I'm not going to tell another story as long as I live, because, mamma, would you believe it?"—only yesterday when I was playing in the back yard a great big black bear came out from under the current bushes in the garden and

To Baldpate

"What Mr. Magee flippantly termed his dinner party was seated at last, and there began a meal designed to linger long in the memories of those who partook of it. Puzzled beyond words, the host took stock of his guests. Opposite him, at the foot of the table, he could see the lined face of Mrs. Norton.
dazed, uncomprehending, a little frightened. At his right the great red acreage of Cargan's face held defiance and some amusement; beside it sneered the cruel face of Max; beyond that Mr. Bland's countenance told a story of worry and important anger. And on Mr. Magee's left sat the professor, bearded,
spectacled, calm, seemingly undisturbed by this queer flurry of events,
beside the fair girl of the station who trusted Magee at last. In the first few moments of silence Mr.
Magee compared her delicate features with the coarse knowing face of the woman at the table's foot,
and inwardly answered "No."

Without the genial complement of talk the dinner began. Mr. Peters appeared with another variety of his canned soup, whereupon the silence
was broken by the gastronomic endeavors of Mr. Max and the mayor.
Mr. Magee was reflecting that conversation must be encouraged, when Cargan suddenly spoke.

"I hope I ain't putting you folks
out none," he remarked with obvious sarcasm. "It ain't my habit to drop in unexpected like this. But
business."

"We're delighted, I'm sure," said
Mr. Magee politely.

"I suppose you want to know why I'm here," the mayor went on.
"Well," he hesitated—"it's like this—"

"Dear Mr. Cargan," Magee broke in, "spare me, I pray. And spare yourself. We have had explanations until we are weary. We have decided to drop them altogether, and just to take it for granted that in the words of the song, we're here because we're here."

"All right," replied Cargan, evidently relieved. "That suits me. I'm tired explaining, anyhow. There's a bunch of reformers rose up lately in Reuton—maybe you've heard about
'em. A lovely bunch. A white neck-tie and a half-pouch of brains apiece. They say they're going to do for me at the next election."

Mr. Max laughed harshly from the vicinity of his soup.
"They wrote the first joke book,
them people," he said.

"Well," went on Cargan, "there ain't nobody so insignificant and piffing that people won't listen to
'em when they attack a man in public life. So I've had to reply to this comic opera bunch, and as I say, I'm about wore out explaining. I've had to explain that I never stole the town I used to live in. Indiana, and that I didn't stick up my father with a knife. It gets monotonous. So I'm much obliged to you for passing the explanations up. We won't bother you long, me and Lou. I got a little business here, and then we'll mosey along. We'll clear out about nine o'clock."

"No," protested Magee. "So soon?"
We must make it pleasant for you while you stay. I always hate hosts who talk about their servants—I have a friend who bores me to death
because he has a Jap butler he believes was at Mukden. But I think I am justified in calling your attention to ours. Mr. Peters, the Hermit of Baldpate Mountain. Cooking is merely his avocation. He is writing a book."

"That guy," remarked Cargan, incredulously.

"What do you know about that?"
asked Mr. Bland. "It certainly will get a lot of hot advertising if it ever appears. It's meant to prove that all the trouble in the world has been caused by woman."

The mayor considered.
"He's off—he's nutty, that fellow," he announced. "It ain't women that cause all of the trouble."

"Thank you, Mr. Cargan," said
Miss Norton, smiling.

"Anybody'd know it to look at you, miss," replied the mayor in his most gallant manner. Then he added hastily: "And you, ma'am," with a nod in the other woman's direction.

"I don't know as I got the evidence in my face," responded Mrs.
Norton easily, "but women don't make no trouble. I know that. I think the man's crazy, myself, and I'd tell him so if he wasn't the cook." She paused, for Peters had entered the room. There was silence while he changed the courses. "It's getting so now you can't say the things to a cook you can to a king,"
she finished, after the hermit had retired.

"Ahem—Mr. Cargan," put in Professor Bolton, "you give it as your opinion that woman is no troublemaker, and I must admit that I agree with your premise in general,
although occasionally she may cause
a—slight annoyance. Undeniably,
there is a lot of trouble in the world.
To whose efforts do you ascribe
it?"

The mayor ran his thick fingers
through his hair.
"I get you," he said, "and I got you."

trouble? Who's made it from the beginning of time? The reformers, Doc. Yes, sir. Who was the first reformer. The snake in the garden of Eden. This hermit guy probably has a twenty to one shot he'd just fin-

BOXING SEASON TO OPEN HERE TODAY

Record Crowd Expected for Card Featuring Nelson-White Battle at Old Y Building

A record breaking crowd for a sporting event in La Crosse is expected to attend the opening of the La Crosse Athletic club's ring calendar for 1914 this afternoon. The bouts, three in number, with a smashing ten round heavyweight battle as the final, will start at 2:30 this afternoon. The seats have nearly been exhausted, according to officials of the club.

The bouts will take place in the old Y. M. C. A. under the supervision of George Duffy of Milwaukee, referee. The referee was appointed by the state boxing commission, and as a guarantee of square battling, W. P. Hart of Eau Claire, a member of the commission, will be at the ringside.

The opening argument of the card will be a six round mix between Young Sampson, whose fame as a wrestler is well known, and Frank Lucynski of Sparta. The north side fireman's bout today will be his debut in the squared circle, and will be watched with interest by numerous of his mat backers.

Following the disposal of the Sampson-Lucynski difference, Jack "Kid" Farrell of Philadelphia will mix it for eight rounds with Joe Welling of Chicago. Both of these men are lightweights of reputation. Welling having mixed it with men like Patsy Drouillard with good success. Farrell claims to have shaded Jack Britton in a recent bout. The final argument is to be a classy battle between Art Nelson, the Wyeville wood chopper, who has a reputation of winning by the K. O. rout, and Sailor White of Chicago. White is a tall rangy lad with speed and cleverness, and Nelson will be required to go a fast pace to beat him.

REUNION ON HIS 69TH BIRTHDAY

A family reunion was held last night at the home of Mr. Nels Davidson in honor of his sixty-ninth birthday. A six o'clock dinner was served at which covers were laid for thirty. A large birthday cake centered the table. The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. Forseth, Sheyenne, N. D.; Nilmer Davidson, Minneapolis; and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Davidson and two children of Winona, Minn.

GIVE UP RADIUM SEARCH

CHICAGO, Jan. 1.—Detectives today gave up the search for the $4,500 speck of radium, stolen from the body of a woman patient at St. Luke's hospital, but believe that thief will be captured if he attempts to dispose of it. Whoever stole the radium was clever enough to substitute a platinum capsule, the exact size of the one containing the costly mineral.

ARKANSAS LID IS ON

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 1.—Wails, moans and sighs from bibulous convulsions marked the ushering in of the new year here, for at midnight the lid was put on and clamped when the law which made Arkansas practically a "dry" state, went into effect.

THREE NEW LAWS IN EFFECT JAN. 1

Eugenic Marriage Act, Most Talked of Bill Passed by Last Legislature, Will Soon Be Operative

BILL FOR FREE DRINKING CUPS

Railroads Required to Furnish Such Articles to All Passengers Who Pay for Ten Mile Ride

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 1.—With the ringing of the new year three of the laws passed at the last session of the legislature became operative. Three others are to go into force during the year and two others, the last of the 1913 session batch, will take effect on Jan. 1, 1915.

The most talked of law is the eugenic law, or chapter 738 of the laws of 1913, which went into effect at midnight on Wednesday and affects all marriage licenses issued in the state until it shall be repealed.

Free Drinking Cups Another which went into effect on Wednesday night is that which compels all railroads in the state to furnish free individual drinking cups on all trains. A law passed by a previous legislature denied the railroads permission to allow the public drinking cup to be used in trains. The new law goes a step further and compels railroads to furnish cups to all passengers who have paid for a transportation for ten consecutive miles with a drinking cup on demand, which shall not have been previously used by another person.

The third law to go into effect on New Year's day is that relating to fire insurance adjusters.

Chapter 317 of the laws of 1913 takes effect on June 1, 1914. This law regulates the manufacture, storage, sale and distribution of matches and provides a penalty for the violation of such regulations.

Regulate Matches This law prohibits the sale of white phosphorus, single dipped strike anywhere matches or of matches which when packed 500 in a box and placed in an oven maintained at a constant temperature of 200 degrees Fahrenheit will ignite in eight hours or the Blazer or so-called wind matches, whether of the so-called safety or strike anywhere type.

On Sept. 3, 1914, chapter 311 will go into effect. This prohibits the sale of misbranded articles of food and is an amendment to a previously enacted law.

Change County Boards On April 1, 1914, another amendment to an established law goes into effect. This relates to county boards in counties having a population of at least 250,000. Milwaukee county is the only one that fills the bill. This law provides for the election of supervisors to the county board from the odd numbered assembly districts to serve for two years and those from the even numbered districts for four years. When these terms expire supervisors shall be elected for four year terms.

Hits Poultry Dealers Poultry dealers have just another year in which to comply with the regulations of chapter 385, which provides a penalty for any person who shall ship poultry confined in coops less than 13 inches high and not covered at the top by wires or screening containing meshes not to exceed one inch in size.

A section of the state law relating to the salaries of supervisors situated in any county having a population of more than 30,000. In these towns the supervisors shall receive a salary after Jan. 1, 1915, in lieu of all compensation per diem not to exceed $600 per annum as may be fixed by the voters at any annual town meeting.

WILL APPEAL TO CONGRESS CHICAGO, Jan. 1.—On the ground that no woman's life is safe in Mexico at the present time, Lieutenant Governor Barratt O'Hara will appeal to congress to prevent the deportation to Mexico of Senorita Laura Leon, pretty 21 year old daughter of a rebel leader, if the immigration authorities hold that she was brought to this country for immoral purposes.

STAY UP LATE TO GREET NEW YEAR

Watch Parties Welcome 1914 to La Crosse on New Year's Eve

SERVICES IN MANY OF CHURCHES

Congregations Hold Watch Services Last Night and Special Meetings Today

Thousands of otherwise strict adherents to the "simple life" stayed up until twelve o'clock last night to "watch" the New Year make its debut to La Crosse inhabitants. There were "sounds of revelry by night," when all the hosts were gathered in to various places of rendezvous to have one good time before taking the pledge, to imbibe their last before mounting the water wagon for an eight or ten days' trip through arid wastes.

Many Watch Parties "Watch services" were held by many of the churches to usher in 1914 in the true Christian spirit. "Watch parties" galore joyfully welcomed the New Year as an opportunity to make amends for past errors and to "turn over a new leaf."

The Tabernacle Baptist church held a three part service last night with musical numbers furnishing a large and delightful part of the program. Rev. C. R. Bearmore gave an address.

The First Presbyterian church gave a program this morning under the direction of the Young People's society.

The First Methodist church in addition to the regular prayer meeting last night, saw the New Year in with appropriate services, including an address by Rev. T. Stanley Oadams.

The First Evangelical church, Rev. Haack, pastor, held special services this morning at 10 o'clock.

The Baptist church, Rev. Billings, pastor, observed the occasion with appropriate services beginning at eight o'clock in the evening.

The City Mission and Spiritualist church also held special services for the observance of the incoming of the new year.

At the Y. W. C. A. the girls had a special party last evening at which a good time was had by all present. A big chicken dinner was planned for this noon in the association dining rooms.

The First German Methodist church, Seventh and Ferry streets, Rev. John Klaus, held watch services last night with a sermon by the pastor.

Open House Today The Y. M. C. A. will hold its annual New Year's "Open House" today, beginning at 2:30 this afternoon and continuing until 10:00 p. m. A program of gymnastic exercises will take place by the various classes under the direction of Director H. R. Lee, and basketball, indoor and volley ball contests will also be staged.

The Knights Templar will have their annual ball tonight at Masonic Temple with special music and decorations. The ball will start at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

OPEN SHOP LOSS ST. The Pig Would Climb on the Table.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

The Pig Who Had No Table Manners

"Oh, daddy, won't you please tell us a story about yourself when you were a little boy?" asked Jack.

"Well, children, I can't tell you much that I did, for when I was a boy I lived on a large plantation and my daddy kept me very busy attending to a good many of the animals. I had lots of fun, though, for I remember it with a lot of pleasure. Of course, like all children, I pay pet animals, and, now, which do you suppose were my pets?"

"The white rabbits," chirped up Jack.

"Oh, no," said daddy; "I claimed the pigs! One little pig, though, caused me a great deal of trouble and worry and also gave his fond mother many sleepless nights, for he was a great rover and would sneak out of his sty and roam the woods over and over. He did have fine old times, though, for in the woods he'd meet good natured old Br'er Bar, who took quite a shine to little Look-a-do, as his mother called him, and gave fine parties for him. Look-a-do would dress in his best clothes and go to Br'er Bar's parties, where the foxes and mountain goats would also be invited. They would have things to eat—all kinds of wild birds, acorn pudding, wonderful peanut butter that old Br'er Bar prided himself upon making, honey and persimmon ale instead of water, for that is a very fine drink, even better than lemonade, I imagine."

"The foxes, as you know, are very careful about their table manners and also extremely proud and were quite disgusted with little Piggy Look-a-do's table manners. For instead of saying 'Thank you' he'd just grunt when anything was passed to him. He swallowed his food without chewing it at all. He would reach across the table, and if he couldn't reach a thing he'd climb on the table, much to the horror of all the other animals. Well, in fact, he had so badly that all his other nice mannered playmates simply would not have anything to do with him and just called him 'pig'."

"Even Br'er Bar couldn't like him because of his bad manners, and finally he just had to go out and root in the ground for something to eat. Of course when he did that he ruined his lovely little clothes, his white shoes and trousers became all muddy, and his little speckled coat got very rusty looking."

"Piggy Look-a-do realized that he was losing his good looks, for his little pink nose looked white and his eyes very dull. He was too proud to return home to his mother, so he wandered through the woods trying to find something to eat. Finally he came to an apple orchard belonging to a mountaineer. This was the end of poor Piggy Look-a-do, for the next day he was killed and came on the table, roasted red and brown, with a big red apple in his mouth, and made a fine feast for the mountaineer and his family."

My Cleansing, Healing Balm Instantly Cures Nose, Head and Throat—Stops Nasty Catarrhal Discharges, Dull Headache Goes

Try "Ely's Cream Balm." Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it—Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dullness and headache will disappear. By morning! the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and soothes the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of relief comes.

Don't lay awake tonight struggling for breath, with head stuffed, nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its run nose, foul mucous dripping into throat, and raw dryness is disagreeable but truly needless.

Put your faith—just one small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm"—and your catarrh will surely disappear.

'13 NO HOODOO FOR LA CROSSE LOVERS
The year 1913 was no hoodoo for La Crosse lovers and during that year, feared by the superstitious, 443 couples were "joined in the holy bonds of matrimony."
The annual vital statistics report of Registrar of Deeds A. E. Thompson shows deaths to be slightly greater than in 1912, although they were less than in 1911.
Births show a big increase.
The report follows:

Births 298 917 987
Deaths 616 548 608
Marriages 389 415 443

TANGO KILLS DEBUTANTE
LONDON, Jan. 1.—Miss Mary Meek, debutante daughter of a lawyer, died from the excitement of the tango while attending her first ball.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!
We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.
Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

URGE ACTION TO PREVENT FIRES

State Society that Made Inspection of City Communicates with Sorensen to Get Action

TO URGE NEW BUILDING CODE
Mayor Says Matter Will Be Put Up to Council Soon in Effort to Afford Better Protection

The Wisconsin State Fire Prevention society, in a communication to Mayor Ori J. Sorensen, asks what has been done by the city of La Crosse to comply with the recommendations for better protection as set forth in the report rendered by the society some time ago.

That our building ordinance is inadequate, lacking in efficiency and conflicting in some of its provisions; that an entirely new building code should be adopted here, and that many of our laws and ordinances intended to prevent fires are not enforced, was the substance of the report of the Wisconsin State Fire Prevention society which recently made a complete examination of local conditions.

Mayor Ori J. Sorensen, in discussing the report of the Fire Prevention society, pointed out that during his first administration he put up a strenuous fight for a new building code.

He declared that the report shows so many weaknesses here that there will be steps taken immediately to secure, through the council, the adoption of a new building code and the passage of ordinances necessary to comply with the recommendations of the society.

Compliments Schools.
While the report flayed the city most unmercifully in many respects it takes occasion to compliment the public schools on the splendid manner in which the fire drills are kept up.

The report takes sharp exception to the way the ordinance providing for an electrical inspector is enforced. It says:

"The ordinance providing for such an official is good, but our inspection convinces us that here is a lack of enforcement. Even new work is done poorly; old work is very defective and dangerous, and the changes in the old wiring is not supervised with sufficient strictness. The 'National Electric Code' is very properly adopted as test for all electric work, but it needs a city electrician thoroughly familiar with the provisions of this code and modern methods of wiring to regularly inspect and closely supervise all electric work."

Explosives Unsafe.
The report says the city should have an ordinance providing that gasoline, benzine and naphtha be stored on some one lot in the city instead of the present law which limits the time the barrels may be permitted to stand in one place.

The ordinance regulating the storage of other explosives is also inadequate, it declares.

In discussing the fire alarm system, the report refers to central station, in which it is located, as "a building of only ordinary construction," and recommends that the system be moved to one of non-combustible construction and to quarters where chances of interruption from outside sources be minimized.

Chemical for No. 5.
The inspectors suggest that the hose wagon at No. 5 station be equipped with a chemical attachment and point out that the department is equipped with old-fashioned steamers.

SPARTA, WIS.

The Methodist Episcopal church, Rev. Straw, pastor, will observe the sacrament of the Lord's Supper on Sunday, and new members will be received into the church. The topic for the evening service is "As Many as Received Him." The Junior league and the monthly Saturday afternoon meeting will be omitted this week. Next week will be prayer week in the Methodist church.

Services at the Norwegian Lutheran church will be conducted by Rev. E. O. Vik of La Crosse, and the services will be in English. The service will be held at 3:00 p. m.

The Zion Evangelical church, P. E. Walter, pastor, will hold its regular meetings on Sunday. On January 8, the Ladies' aid will meet at the home of Miss Lena Homer on Central avenue, at 2:30 p. m. The Catechetical class meets on Tuesday at 4:30.

The Congregational church will hold its usual communion service next Sunday morning. The Christian Endeavor society meets at 6:15 Sunday evening under the direction of its new officers. The sermon for Sunday evening will be on the theme, "The One Thing Needful." This church will observe prayer week from January 4th to the 10th.

THE NATIONAL BANK of LA CROSSE

invites the attention of the public to the following statement of condition close of business, Dec. 31, 1913, and with respect to the assets listed in our judgment they are clean and conservatively valued. There are no notes and none the makers of which are in the hands of receivers or trustees of the bond issues is in default as to principal or interest. The cash is ample and sound.

We wish to express our appreciation of the large business which has been done during the past year. We enter the new year with confidence and believe the necessary readjustments are made in relation to tariff and currency to come a period of general prosperity.

RECALLS VISITS OF NOTED VIOLINISTS

Isador Tippmann Says Kubelik Will Be Third Great Violinist to Visit the City

(By Isador Tippmann.)

It is many years since a violinist of international fame has played in La Crosse. Ole Bull, the famous Norwegian violinist, equally distinguished as a man of sterling quality of heart and mind, was the first great violin player who visited this city and I well remember the grand parade which the resident Norwegian citizens had organized in honor of their distinguished countryman. I did not hear Ole Bull play, for I was then a boy of most limited means.

Remenyi Here Once
Besides Ole Bull only one other great violinist has ever visited La Crosse and his name was Edouard Remenyi, the charming Hungarian virtuoso. He played here to a crowded house and those who have heard him think of him and his playing to this day in recollection that is most pleasant. Short, stout and bald, with a face lit up by kindness of heart and brilliancy of mind, he played the violin, and his music became a message of joy, of happiness, sorrow, grief and despair, for with Remenyi music was above all the language of the heart, the expression of emotion.

Other good violin players, but few in number, have from time to time appeared and played in our city but I know of none who could stand in the same class with Bull and Remenyi.

Kubelik the Third

The third world famous violinist will play at the normal hall on January 15. He gives a grand concert there under the auspices of Mills & Hollaender of Milwaukee and the artist's name is Jan Kubelik. A few biographical notes may be of interest: Jan Kubelik was born in 1880 at Michle, a village of Bohemia. His first lessons on the violin he received of his father, who was a gardener by profession and a musical amateur. When eight years old Jan Kubelik played a Vieuxtemps concerto in a concert at Prague. He then became a pupil of Seocok, the famous violin teacher of Prague, with whom he remained for six years. He then started long concert tours and won particular favor in London, Paris and Vienna. He became the most popular violinist since Paganini and it is Paganini's music upon which Kubelik's fame was established and on which it rests. He overcomes the stupendous technical difficulties of Paganini's compositions with the utmost ease. His tone is like finely polished marble, bright and smooth. He plays with absolute ease and is free from all mannerism and affectation. Personally he is most agreeable and of charming modesty.

To U. S. in 1892

Kubelik made his first American concert tour in 1892 to 1893 and the financial results were phenomenal. In 1903 he married the Countess Czaki Szell of Hungary. Mr. Kubelik has played many times before royalty. He was decorated by Pope Leo XIII with the order of St. Gregory, received the Beethoven grand medal of honor from the London Philharmonic society and was decorated at Belgrade by King Alexander. Mr. Kubelik has a number of fine old violins. The one he uses on his present tour is said to be the finest Stradivari violin in existence for which the violinist paid the sum of $30,000.

It is to be hoped that some of the genuine musical enthusiasm which lived in this community when the great violinists, Ole Bull and Edouard Remenyi, played here can be revived, so the important event of Mr. Jan Kubelik's appearance in La Crosse may be fittingly appreciated and celebrated.

Retribution.

To make good resolutions is all right, but it is better to make good. A able book agent can convince you he is educating the people, and he really does teach them a few things.

LADIES' DAY AT LA CROSSE CLUB

The annual reception and ladies' day at the La Crosse club was held last evening. A large number of ladies with their escorts were present. The evening was spent in card playing and conversation. A fine lunch was served. The Christmas decorations were in evidence and the rooms presented a gala appearance.

ROWENA CARD PARTY

The Rowena circle of the Brotherhood of American Yeomen gave a card party in Linker hall Tuesday afternoon for members and friends. Progressive cinch was played and prizes were won by Mesdames J. Brudlos, Grover G. Ash, Dennison, H. Berndt and Hackbart. The circle will hold its regular meeting in Linker hall next Tuesday and will give a masked ball next Thursday evening.

B. A. Yeomen held its weekly dance Tuesday evening for members and invited friends. A large crowd was present. Excellent music was furnished by Hackbart's Yeomen orchestra. Progressive cinch was played and prizes were won by Mr. and Mrs. Moth and Mesdames Vondrashek and Roth.

Property Worth More

Generally speaking La Crosse

estate is cheaper than it is in other city in Wisconsin. This clusion was forced upon me in a recent Hogan-Skidmore deal.

When Mr. Skidmore was first approached to take La Crosse property he would have none of it. It took letter, telegram and a long distance call to finally get him here to see it. After looking us over the deal was made as far as he was concerned. He was surprised to find the prevailing prices so low as for stance in connection with the block

street between Cass

and Main streets.

"When I was six years old my family lived on Main and 5th streets,

where Barrons, Scott-Rose and other stores now stand. My father sold the greater part of this property in 1876 for $10,000. How much is it worth today?"

Big Business Here

"One of the manufacturers told me

recently he had orders enough to keep his factory busy until July 1,

1914 and another said he had larger streets there is only one piece of vacant property as large as three adjoining lots and you can count on the fingers of your two hands all the other residence sites.

"The Green Bay railway has always been a dividing line and has quite sharply marked the difference

in values on the east and west of this line.

"They talk about our large prairie

but have you noticed how rapidly

it is building up and all of our future growth must be in the east part of our city. How much land is there east of the Green Bay track not already platted into lots? Taking out the Interstate fair grounds all

there is left is the tract owned by the McArthur and the Hogan school tract, recently sold to Mr. Skidmore.

When it comes to business property of the first class or any class for that matter, have you ever thought

how small the space is available for this purpose?"

Must Build East

"You cannot go east on Main street beyond Seventh because of churches, park, library and other public buildings. South is blocked by market square, parks and public buildings. North we run into courthouse, government building and city hall. West we have the river.

"There is very little of it when you come to analyze it. What is fringe worth on Main between

Fourth and Fifth and between Fifth

than any year since he has been in

business.

"With such conditions prevailing

and living as we do in the most beautiful city in this country, we should be a happy and contented

people and why should not our real property come into its own. It looks good to me and I have been looking at it for thirty years."

Leads North Side

Joseph Dubraks of the firm of

Marvin & Dubraks declared that the north side presents splendid opportunities to the real estate buyer.

"We have on the north side," said

Mr. Dubraks, "some of the best residence and factory sites in the city.

It has been pointed out that the growth of La Crosse, on the south side, must be eastward. The bluff

will eventually check that and then it will remain for North La Crosse

to provide for the increasing population.

"The real estate market on the north side has been active during the last year and 1914 will be even more so."

MYSTERY NOT MURDER?

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—Satisfied

that the trunk mystery victim found on Pitt street Monday is Ivan Mar-

tysewitsch, who came here from Garrisson, N. Y., Dec. 20, Inspector Fau-rot is anxious to determine whether the man died a natural death or was murdered. Absence of marks on the body today led the inspector to work on the theory that the man died naturally among ignorant friends who tried to conceal the facts.

Along the Chime.

"Auntie, when you were a young girl

were you very pretty?"

"Yes, my child, very pretty."

"Were you popular?"

"Oh, yes, very popular. I was the belle of the neighborhood."

"Didn't any young men ever come to call on you?"

"Oh, yes, my dear—lots of them."

"Then, auntie, why is it that you never married?"

"Nobody ever proposed to me."

"Why not?"

thought it must have been the high

OPTIMISM RULES ALL OVER COUNTRY FOR COMING YEAR

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—General optimism for 1914 confidence in the new currency law, and the belief that the industries of the country will adjust themselves to the new tariff, was expressed by business leaders today in every part of the country. Telegrams received by the Morning World from all sections of the Union and published today show

the conditions are regarded as sound.

"The outlook for 1914 is bright," wired William C. Redfield, secretary of commerce. "I think the fundamental economic conditions of the country are sound."

Other telegrams were in part:

"If the currency law proves to be

all that the administration hoped for,

and if the banks of the country,

both national and state, will largely and willingly adopt it, general confidence will be restored and prosperity re-established."—James

B. Forgan, President First National bank, Chicago.

pansion and extension of foreign trade. Los Angeles hails the new

ALLIANCE IS NOT HELD FOR PANIC

Coroner's Jury Decides that Someone Within the Hall Started Cry of Fire

MOYER KIDNAPING PROBE HALTS

No Session of the Special Grand Jury Until After New Year's

CALUMET, Mich., Jan. 1.—The coroner's inquiry into the panic which cost the lives of seventy-four persons in Italian hall Christmas eve ended last night in a jury finding which failed to disclose the identity of the person who raised the false cry of fire. That the cry was raised and that it was the direct and only cause for the stampede was established to the satisfaction of the jurors.

A portion of the verdict which is criticized by the members of the Western Federation of Miners, who have insisted that some agent of the Citizens' alliance was responsible for the panic, sets forth that "no person or persons were allowed inside the hall without producing a union card or having some members of the union vouch for him."

There was no session today of the special Houghton county grand jury and the investigation into the circumstances surrounding the shooting and ejection from the copper country of Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners.

Strike leaders today refused to comment on the verdict of the coroner's jury which investigated the Christmas eve panic at Red Jacket.
The verdict absolving the Citizens' alliance or any of its members from responsibility for the panic, which cost seventy-four lives, was returned last night after five hours' deliberation. The jury decided that the panic was caused by the shout of fire from some unidentified person who was within the hall.

ANALYSIS OF NEW CURRENCY BILL A BIG COPLIMENT

And as it might need to meet the demands upon it, and could secure such currency as it might require.
The maturity of the collateral will liquidate the loan within the ninety days, and when the need for the currency is at an end, it will be returned to the regional bank and cancelled.

Provide Elasticity

In this way the present lack of elasticity will be supplied and there will be a central storehouse where the reserves of all the banks of a certain region will be gathered to be distributed again where needed, and the necessary currency can be easily and quickly obtained.

The regional bank must go to the federal reserve board and deposit its securities and "at the discretion" of that body receive federal reserve

notes, which are the obligations of the United States. This provision and the authority given the federal reserve board over the regional banks

seem to insure absolute government control over those banks, although

six of the nine directors of each regional bank are elected by the stock-

holding banks. The stockholding

banks in each regional bank are divided into three classes according to capital, and two of the directors are elected by the large banks, two by the medium sized banks and two by the small banks, so all classes of banks will be represented on the board of directors, and it will be difficult for the big bankers to control

the board of directors against the interests of the small bankers and the public.

Creates Confidence

This law should give a feeling of safety and confidence in our financial system; it will assure the banker assistance in time of need, of which he has never been sure in the past; it will make rates of interest more uniform and will give the solvent business man a wider market for his paper; it will add stability and remove the anxieties and doubt that so often disturb the business world and it will forever prevent the recurrence

of a panic such as that of 1907.

Among the other changes which can be noted is the change of the success. The building was re-finished the city.

Outside of the remodeling and re-

MORAN PROVES PUGS CANNOT COME BACK

Owen Moran.

The passing of Owen Moran furnishes more proof that the word "comeback" should be eliminated from the fighting dictionary. Less than two years ago he was looked upon as one of the greatest lightweight in the game. Then he slipped. Fans believed that he could come back, but recent events have proved that he is down and out for good.

A Warned Over Sensation.
The professional fire fighter is too frequently faced with danger to regard fires in an aesthetic light, but the feelings of the amateur with a passion for "running with the machine" occasionally show an epicurean flavor.

While running to a fire in a large town in Massachusetts one citizen overtook another, who was going in the same direction.

"Oh, dear!" the last gasped, quite out of breath. "I hope it's not the stove lining works; I've seen that twice already."—Youth's Companion.

The Catskills.
The Catskill mountains are a chain of the Appalachian system, beginning in Greene county, N. Y., on the west side of the Hudson river. The scenery of these mountains is very beautiful and picturesque, while from the higher points may be seen extensive and interesting views, taking in a radius from the Green mountains of Vermont to the West Point highlands.

Moral Principle.
Master-Jinks, you've been at my cigars again, I'll bet! Butler—Beg pardon, sir, I never bet!

Outside of His Practice.
"All that is the matter with you, sir," said the eminent physician after a thorough examination, "is lack of nutrition. You don't eat enough."

"I eat all I can hold, doctor," said the attenuated caller.

"Then you need to have your capacity enlarged, and that's a case for a surgeon. Five dollars, please. Good morning."—Chicago Tribune.

Capital Punishment.
The intelligent taleman was being examined to pass on to the jury in a murder trial.

"Do you believe in capital punishment?" inquired the attorney.

"You bet I do," came the prompt response. "I'm agin the trusts, and I want to see half of Wall street in jail, where they belong."—Argonaut.

Labor.
Labor is the ornament of the citizen. The reward of toil is when you confer blessings on others. His high dignity confers honor on the king; be ours the glory of our hands.—Schiller.

Folding Headgear.
"These collapsible opera hats are a great convenience."

"So?"

"Yes; you have no idea how much room they save in a flat."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

TIME AND PATIENCE.
No great thing is created suddenly, any more than a bunch of grapes or a fig. If you tell me that you desire a fig I answer you that there must be time. Let it first blossom, then bear fruit, then ripen.—Epictetus.

Short Story

BETTY'S BROUGHAM

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

David Graham had lost many nights of sleep pondering over the decision of a suitable and useful gift for Celeste.

The brief advertisement in the morning paper, which his roaming eyes caught, was almost as an inspiration from the sky.

"Electric brougham for sale. Newly upholstered in grey. Most suitable for lady. Immediate sale, $1,500; B. Lane, 609 Hamilton street."

"The very thing," commented Graham with a relieved smile. "And since it is a lady's brougham it will no doubt have all the equipment necessary. I will go up to day and have a look at it."

He reflected that before the presentation of the gift to Celeste at Christmas, she would have consented to become his wife. Graham intended to ask her the momentous question on the first propitious occasion.

Late in the afternoon he went to the address mentioned in the advertisement. If the brougham should prove satisfactory, Graham intended to have it sent to his garage and left there until the Christmas holidays.

Upon reaching 609 he was surprised that one who owned an electric brougham would live in so poor a cottage.

"Reduced circumstances," he concluded, and dropped the grotesque knocker that seemed oddly out of place on the shabby door.

The girl who answered was pale, slim and unspeakably wistful. Graham was suddenly aware of an ache in his throat. He did not know exactly why.

"I have come in regard to this," Graham said, and held out the slip from the morning paper.

"Won't you come in?" the girl suggested in a voice from which all the gladness had gone.

Graham went inside and stood awkwardly, scarcely knowing how to continue his strange errand. He realized then that in the girl's entire make-up there was no hint of color, that she was suffering a loss that had wrung every drop of happiness from her life. Graham was not used to sadness. It affected him perhaps the more poignantly.

"My brougham is in the garage at the corner of the street," she told him. "If you care to look at it before—" She could not go on and the smile that struggled in her lips was more heartbreaking than a burst of tears would have been.

"I do want to see it," Graham said quickly. He was fearful of snatching the frail figure in his arms to try to comfort her. Stranger though he was, his arms ached with purely sympathetic longing to give some kind of solace to this lone sufferer.

The feeling was not that which prompted him to take Celeste in his arms. "I am looking for just such a one as you describe."

He went out and followed the direction of her glance. The small brougham he found there was an exquisite example of luxury. Every modern equipment for a dainty woman's comfort was there. Graham realized that only the hands of love could have provided so dainty an equipage. It would send Celeste into raptures of delight.

When the canvas covering had been put back carefully on the brougham Graham returned to Betty Lane.

She received with eyes that strove to conceal their apprehension. That she was making a valiant effort to hide her emotion was evident to Graham. She feared his answer, yet she knew that her treasure must go. She was conscious of a feeling of safety. Something told her that her little machine would not be roughly handled if Graham should purchase it.

"Two thousand is not too much for it," he told her. "It is in every way suitable for my needs. It is a gift for a lady," he added, thinking she might be interested in the fate of her car.

"It is breaking my heart—to dispose of it," Betty found herself telling him. "My father"—her voice trembled, perilously near to breaking—"my father gave it to me; it was his first gift after he had made his money. We struggled for years—he and I." She stopped, seemingly lost in a dear dream of the past.

"And then?" urged Graham softly. "Well—we came to New York from the West on a trip we had planned when our ship should sail in. We had scarcely touched eastern soil when a bad investment lost him everything." She paused again and her eyes closed tightly. "It was too much for him—he—" She brushed her eyes swiftly. "I must sell everything I have," she finished with a bravely attempted smile.

Graham's natural impulse was to offer her the money for her brougham with the understanding that she continue to use it. He knew, however, that the slim girl in her somber clothes would refuse his offer. Something of pride in her bearing made him change his words.

"The only way I can be of service to you is to purchase the brougham," he said gravely. "I need not inform you that it will have the best of care."

"Thank you," Betty nodded, and found no more words.

When Graham came the next day for the car he noticed that the grotesque knocker had been taken from the door. When he again entered the tiny cottage he saw, too, that all preparations for immediate removal had been made. The knowledge gave him an unaccustomed thrill of power. Evidently the golden shaft of attraction had darted between them. "There is a small farm out in central Iowa that has been holding out waiting arms to me ever since I slipped away from its lure. I leave in the morning," she lifted brave eyes to Graham's face. "Please care for my dear brougham—I care very much for it."

I leave in the morning," she lifted brave eyes to Graham's face. "Please care for my dear brougham—I care very much for it."

When he had left her Graham felt peculiarly depressed. He attributed the unusual mood to the girl's own reflected sorrow. He had the gray brougham put carefully in his garage and covered with double canvases. When he would have had the B. L. that was delicately engraved on the panel of the door removed he found himself unable to do so. There might have been a vague feeling that Betty Lane would one day want her treasure back. In that hope, Graham wanted it left as she had used it.

Sometimes when his chauffeur was not about Graham would lift the canvases and look with swiftly increased emotion at the girl's dainty equipage. Once when he stepped within it he seemed conscious of a lingering fragrance. There was a faded rose lying on the tiny gray rug. Graham did not touch the flower, though some strange longing arose within him to take it up and touch it with his fingers.

He wondered whether or not the girl had worn the flower beneath the soft curve of her chin. Celeste was forgotten. He rejoiced that he had heard a rumor of her engagement to Haldane.

It was when such thought crept into his mind that Graham tried to convince himself that Betty's sentiment over the car had prompted his own romantic feelings. And yet, deep underneath it all, he knew that he would give a tremendous amount of his worldly goods to see Betty smiling within her brougham. He knew also that he, and no other man, would be beside her. She would have a slender band of gold on her left hand and he, David Graham, would have put it there.

The letter that Betty received from him, sent a warm rush of color to her gradually pinkening cheeks and a flutter of swift dreams to her heart.

"David Graham loves me," she whispered. "He loves me better than anything in the world." It seemed to her as if that other person smiled with her.

In Suspense.
A small boy gazed long and earnestly at a fat man who stood on a corner absently chewing the end of a piece of string. Finally the man noticed the boy and inquired:

"Well, my little man, what interests you?"

"Please, sir," the boy returned, "when are you going to pull that tooth?"—Judge.

EARLY HABITS.
Precepts are useful, but practice and imitation go far beyond them; hence the importance of watching early habits, that they may be free from what is objectionable, and of keeping before our mind as much as possible the necessity of imitating the good and the wise.

REPORTS CHICKEN SHOW A SUCCESS

La Crosse Poultry association held its monthly meeting Tuesday night at which the report on the December show was read by Julius Kirchner. The report showed that the exhibition was a success from a financial as well as other viewpoints. Judges for next year's show were chosen, T. J. Rowntree of Nora, Ill., and E. H. Hoffman of La Crosse, being selected. Secretary Will Hoessler spoke on the outlook for the coming year, saying that outside exhibitors felt pleased over the treatment accorded by the La Crosse organization.

SPOTLIGHTS

FISK O'HARA

Augustus Pitou, Jr., announces the coming engagement here of his popular singing star, Fiske O'Hara, who will present a new play entitled, "In Old Dublin." There is a company of notable players in the piece and a wealth of splendid scenery and costumes for the illustration of the story, which deals with life during the early part of the 19th century in the romantic old Irish metropolis. The musical numbers, as usual, will be a feature of Mr. O'Hara's performance.

FINES KISSER—SCOLDED

YONKERS, N. Y., Jan. 1.—"Only the meanest man in the United States would fine a couple for kissing in public," according to an anonymous writer to Magistrate Joseph Beall today. On Christmas day the judge fined a young man and woman $5 each for osculation.

T. R. IN JUNGLES TODAY

SPORTS

HIGH ANXIOUS TO WIPE OUT STIGMA

Will Meet Y. M. C. A. Tonight in Third Game After Two Defeats

Tonight the high school and the Y. M. C. A. will clash in their indoor baseball game of the season. The game will be called at 7:30 at the Y gym. In the two previous games the high has been defeated, but the school team is determined to win this time.

Tomorrow at 8 o'clock the high school basketball team will play their first official game of the season. Their opponents are the strong five which the alumni is gathering together, all old time veterans. The high team is in fine shape and is expecting to get the scalps of the alumni.

As a preliminary to the big game there will be a game between the freshmen and sophomores. The game which was scheduled to take place between the juniors and advanced seniors has been forfeited to the juniors, as the seniors were unable to get a team. After the games are over there will be a dance lasting for two hours. Music will be furnished by the high school orchestra.

HARD TO MAKE PROPER WEIGHT

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 1.—It was reported early today that Bud Anderson has been having difficulty making the proper weight for his twenty round battle this afternoon with Leach Cross. Anderson's manager denied this. Cross was at the exact poundage this morning. Anderson's backers expressed considerable apprehension. Cross was a 10 to 7 favorite.

WISCONSIN CHAMP IN FIVE SPORTS

Only One Western Titles Awarded the Badger University in 1913

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 1.—With five western championships tucked under his arm the University of Wisconsin emerges from a year's strenuous athletic work with only three western championships not won, they being the basketball, baseball and football. The championships were those in basketball, indoor track, gymnastics, and cross country.

Albeit the Wisconsin "deal" in athletics does not make championship athletes of prime importance, it does lean towards clean athletics and the greater participation in athletics by a larger number of students, which results in greater benefits to students as a whole, still the record is fully satisfactory to those who see success spelled only in the word "championship."
